What is Data Insights?

The Next Step of Integrated Reasoning

The Integrated Reasoning (IR) section of the GMAT Exam was designed to analyze and synthesize data from multiple sources. Now the Data Insights section takes that to the next level.

The Ultimate Showcase of Data Literacy Skills

With GMAT Focus Edition's test design, Data Insights uses IR and Data Sufficiency question types to measure newly calibrated digital and data literacy dimension—one of the most relevant and in-demand skills in business today.

The Full Picture

All three sections together (Data Insights, Quantitative Reasoning, and Verbal Reasoning) provide the most holistic view of a candidate's business school readiness in GMAT history.

Which GMAT Should Candidates Take?

Exam appointments available
starting November 7, 2023

- Applying during Round 2 & 3
- Prefer a much shorter exam
- Want to highlight data analysis skills
- Do not need to produce an analytical writing assessment
- Want the flexibility to change up to 3 responses per section
- Would like their official score delivered in 3–5 days.

Exam appointments available
through January 31, 2024

- Applying during Round 1 & 2
- Prefer more opportunities to take breaks
- Have already prepped considerably for the GMAT Exam
- Prefer their Total Score reflect online quant and verbal skills
- Would like to attempt this version before GMAT Focus

Focus on High Quality Standards

Predictive Validity

- Predictive validity is the extent to which an assessment accurately predicts future outcomes.
- The correlation between the GMAT Focus Total and GGPA is between 0.46 – 0.58 depending on program type, which is comparable to the current GMAT Total

Construct Validity

- Construct validity indicates whether an assessment accurately measures what it's supposed to measure
- Factor analyses indicates that the Test Construct demonstrates strong and stable unidimensionality for each section

Content Validity

- Content validity checks if an assessment covers all the important things it's supposed to measure and avoids including irrelevant or unnecessary things
- Focus offers tightly controlled content coverage across sections ensuring test content and score comparability equivalence across test takers

Score Reliability

- Score reliability refers to the consistency and stability of scores obtained from an assessment across different attempts or test takers
- Focus demonstrates highly consistent score accuracy throughout the scale with Total Score Reliability greater than 0.90

GMAT Focus: Fair and Unbiased

Newly developed groundbreaking psychometric methodology called Residual-based Differential Item Functioning helps ensure the fairness of GMAT Focus scores across protected groups

Every potential test question is subjected to a rigorous seven-step development and review process before it can be used in operational exams

Only items that successfully pass all content and statistical review processes will be considered for inclusion in the operational GMAT exam

On average, a cycle of GMAT item development takes about 12 months

Evolving the Score Scale

The score scales for GMAT Focus Edition have been reset back to a more normal, bell-shaped distribution based on the latest test population data

Why recalibrate the score scale?

- GMAT test population has evolved significantly over time
- Previous scores had seen significant drift, resulting in a negative skew in the score distribution
- Improve the discrimination power throughout the score scale
- Content areas and test constructs have been refined to narrow scope and focus on problem solving, data literacy, and critical thinking
- Total Score is now comprised of 3 section scores
- New Question Review & Edit feature will have implications for testing behavior

Updated GMAT Focus Score Scales

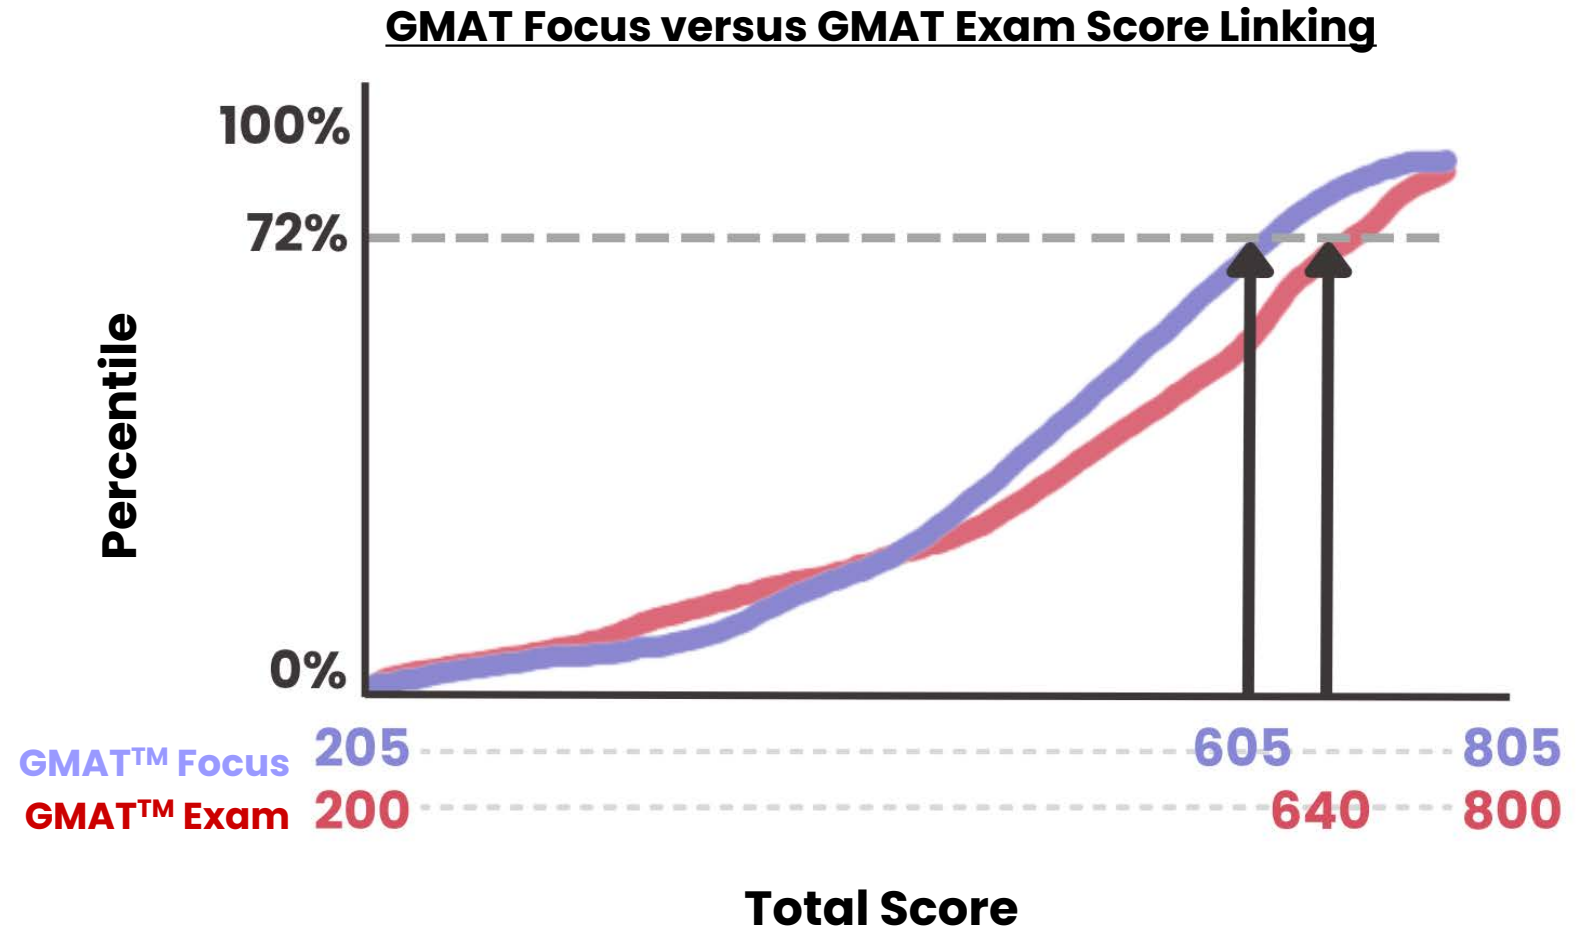

Why Change the Scale?

- Ensure both candidates and schools can easily identify a GMAT Focus Edition score
- Ensure candidates are evaluated fairly
- Drive awareness of the score scale change/recalibration

Interpreting GMAT Focus Scores

In this illustrative example, a candidate who scored 605 on GMAT Focus demonstrated his/her competitiveness to be at the 72nd percentile which is comparable to someone who scored 640 on the GMAT Exam

Prepare for Candidate Questions

Develop responses to the following candidate queries:

- Do schools prefer the current GMAT, GMAT Focus, or another test?
- If I take both the current GMAT and GMAT Focus, which one will be used to make an admissions decision?
- If I already took the current GMAT, do you recommend that I also take GMAT Focus?
- Will Corporate Recruiters prefer seeing a current GMAT or GMAT Focus?

Admissions Test Requirements

To ensure candidates are able to demonstrate their academic preparedness for the program, the admissions process [requires / strongly encourages / allows] candidates to submit official GMAT (including, GMAT Focus Edition), list other exams, i.e. [Executive Assessment, etc. as appropriate] score results. [Test waivers are available for qualified applicants.]

What is the GMAT Focus Edition?

GMAT Focus Edition is the newest version of the GMAT Exam and still the #1 most widely used assessment by global business schools. It is redesigned to be more efficient, more flexible, and provide greater insights to best help you achieve your career ambitions.

The exam assesses the higher-order critical reasoning and data literacy skills that are most relevant in today's business environment through three 45-minute sections: Quantitative Reasoning, Verbal Reasoning, and Data Insights.

There is no essay section and candidates should be able to adequately prepare for the exam in as little as six weeks.

The test is administered by the Graduate Management Admission Council (GMAC).

Learn more about the GMAT Focus Edition at mba.com/gmatfocus.

Appendix

Sunsetting the GMAT Exam

The updated GMAT™ Focus Edition will replace the previous version of the GMAT™ Exam on January 31, 2024.

With this update, there are other important details you should know:

- GMAT Exam testing appointments will be available through January 31, 2024. This date was chosen to facilitate in-progress business school applications and to provide several options for candidates to meet current Round 1, 2 and 3 deadlines.
- Candidates can still take the GMAT Exam – at both test centers and online – through January 31, 2024.
- GMAT Exam scores will continue to remain valid for five years from the candidate's appointment date. This means you may receive valid GMAT Exam scores after January 31, 2024 through January 31, 2029.

Further Details – Concordance Data

Question: Why do certain ranges of scores have the same percentile ranking?

Answer: They actually don't have the same percentile ranking, but due to rounding to one just one decimal place, it appears as though they do – see the sample below:

GMAT Focus Total Score	Percentile Rounded	Percentile	GMAT Exam Total Score
805	100.0%	99.99897%	800

755	99.8%	99.77454%	770
745	99.7%	99.68546%	770

Question: Why are some GMAT Focus Total Scores comparable to more than one GMAT Exam Total Score and vice versa?

Answer: Due to the differences when rounding across the differing scales for GMAT & GMAT Focus Total Scores, some GMAT Focus Total Scores don't have a precisely comparable GMAT Exam Total Score so what is being presented is the closest Total Score for each version.

Accessing candidate score reports

GMAC makes it easy for you to access GMAT exam scores and reports through our new score reporting portal. Through the GMAC Score Reporting Portal (SRP), schools can access GMAT™ score data and reports for exams taken at a test center and online in one convenient place.

Our electronic score-reporting portal is free, secure, and user-friendly. Its intuitive interface requires no special training, and it lets you access available GMAT scores at your convenience — daily, weekly, or monthly.

The SRP provides users with the tools and flexibility to easily access the scores and data test takers have sent to their programs, including:

- Filter Options – date range, program, test takers' first/last name, percentile & score ranges, and more.
- Download Options – reports in CSV, TXT and PDF format

Ensuring a fair and secure experience

- GMAC employs state-of-the-art test security solutions, using a broad array of technology, to detect and deter unethical behavior
- The innovative CAT algorithm underpinning GMAT Focus dramatically reduces item exposure which minimizes test item overlap to prevent cheating
- Leading-edge measures in place and always on the lookout for people not acting in good faith
- Use all tools available to us to identify illicit behavior before, during, and after an exam is administered.
- There are severe, real-world consequences to any attempt to cheat or circumvent security measures and candidates may face restrictions and/or bans on future testing, and even legal action.
